Willson Center Publication Subvention grants are awarded primarily to University of Georgia tenured or tenure-track faculty. Exceptions may be made only for other members of the UGA academic community who are budgeted for research. Assistant professors in the Franklin College of Arts and Sciences seeking to publish their first book should apply instead to the Franklin College First-Book Subvention Program.

Description of work or manuscript:

Why did you select this publisher? What is the complete history of the work relative to publishers?

Do you have an academic support account? (Yes No) Has the project been supported in any way by UGA? Why is subvention required?

Please attach CV, all correspondence with publisher, and all external evaluations of work obtained by publisher. Submit an original and six copies of your complete application, including any supporting documentation you wish to provide, to the Willson Center for Humanities and Arts. The Committee on Publication Subvention meets twice a year.
